April 2017 Updated to Font-Awesome 4.7.0

Font Awesome (http://fortawesome.github.com/Font-Awesome/) is a web font containing all the icons from the Twitter Bootstrap framework, and now many more. Whilst the implementation in Bootstrap is designed to be used with the `` element (Bootstrap v2), you may find yourself wanting to use these icons on other elements. To do so, you'll need to use the following CSS on the desired element, and then substitute in the content value for the relevant icon.

 1  .element {
 2      position: relative;
 3  }
 4
 5  /replace the content value with the 6  corresponding value from the list below/
 7
 8  .element:before {
 9      content: "\f000";
10      font-family: FontAwesome;
11      font-style: normal;
12      font-weight: normal;
13      text-decoration: inherit;
14  /--adjust as necessary--/
15      color: #000;
16      font-size: 18px;
17      padding-right: 0.5em;
18      position: absolute;
19      top: 10px;
20      left: 0;
21  }

Note: it is not possible to use :before or :after pseudo content on `<input>` elements, however if you instead use `<button>Label</button>`, it will work as desired.

Below is a Font Awesome cheat sheet of all the content values for each icon:

I have not detailed how to implement Font Awesome css; this is covered on their site. If you give me specific scenario in which you want to implement this CSS, I will add it to this snippet.

.class_name{property:value,Property:value......}
.class_name:before{content:"\f156"; color:#f00}

the rupees [code] symbol appear before your content/text under block with .class_name

Hi Jen,
It is beautifully simple. Since the icons are generated by a font, you can apply CSS the same way as for regular text, eg: `color: #999` . In my snippet I have a bunch of rules below the comment 'adjust as necessary', including a `color` rule.

On your css stylesheet you should add:

color: grey;

jusst like you are setting a font color.

Simply amazing. I were using Ligature symbols, but now moved to this one. This has more symbols. Do you know if its compatible with all desktop browsers? especially IE8?

It works by loading the icons via @font-face CSS property, so you can check out the browser support here: http://caniuse.com/#feat=fontface (http://caniuse.com/#feat=fontface). Font Awesome includes the EOT file format, which is supported by IE8 – see here: http://caniuse.com/#feat=eot (http://caniuse.com/#feat=eot)

What about adding conditional icons to form input values?

Say like on success, you have 'input.success'

I can manually create ::before and ::after instances of the icon-ok with :

color: #339900;
content: "\f00c";
font-family: FontAwesome;

after loading the font with @font-face, but I can't get it to show up. Ideally, I would have the input padded left (from right), with the icon on the far right positioned absolutely using ::after.

Any ideas on this?

Thanks – Brian

I ended up using the label:after for my needs. However, I am still curious as to other options. I know the pseudo classes are not allowed on input elements, but there are surely some other ways around this. ☺

The following gets me where I need to be in my case:

label.success{color:#339900;}
input.success{border:1px solid #339900;padding-right: 30px;} label.success:after { color: #339900;
content: "\f00c";
font-family: FontAwesome;
position: absolute;
right: 10px;
top: 25px;
}

Hi Danut,
You simply string the pseudo classes together as `a:visited:before` so you complete code would be

.book-navigation .menu a:visited:before { color: #FF7C00;
content: "\f00c";
font-family: FontAwesome;
text-decoration: none;

Since the icon has position absolute, you can adjust the left or right values. You would likely need to also apply some padding or margin to the parent element to accommodate for this.

Hi Alex,

FontAwesome does not yet have a Vimeo icon. I'm sure it will be added soon in a future version, however in the meantime you can use the font icon from IcoMoon (http://icomoon.io/#preview-free) which includes a Vimeo icon. IcoMoon is a really great tool for combining icons from different fonts which can then be downloaded as a new font file. This helps reduce the overall size of a site, as in most cases, you will only want to use a handful of the available icons.

Hi William,
You can do this by adding the Font Awesome icon style to the `#wrap:after` pseudo element. You then use absolute positioning to place the icon where you need it; if you want it in the center, then you can combine `left: 50%;` with `margin-left: -(half the icon size);` Since you want it to be a background image, you'll need to wrap the content of the `div#wrap` in another div and apply a `z-index` higher than the icon. I have made a demo of this to best explain what I mean. See here: http://codepen.io/astrotim/pen/IjJzL (http://codepen.io/astrotim/pen/IjJzL)

Hope that works for you!
Tim.

Hi JP,

To my knowledge, it is not possible to use the `:before` or `:after` pseudo-selectors on the `<input>` element. I would suggest looking at the Bootstrap approach using prepended components (http://getbootstrap.com/2.3.2/base-css.html#forms) under the heading 'Extending Form Controls'. If you add another element like this, then you'll be able to style it with a Font Awesome icon.

I'd guess that the font definition is incorrect. The snippet above declares `FontAwesome` as the `font-family`, so this requires the presence of an `@font-face` rule which defines `'FontAwesome'` with the relevant paths to the font files. See this CDN version of the CSS (http://netdna.bootstrapcdn.com/font-awesome/3.2.1/css/font-awesome.css), or read the Get Started page on the Font Awesome site (http://fortawesome.github.io/Font-Awesome/get-started/) for more help.

Since Treeview is already using the `.css-treeview label::before` selector, I suggest using the `.css-treeview label::after` selector for your Font Awesome icon. You may need to adjust the positioning to account to it being after, not before the element, but it should work.

Hi Praveen. Yes, you can style the icon font the same way you style text. When combining `:before` with the `:hover` and `:visited` pseudo selectors, you need to chain them together, with hover or visited listed first, example:

.element:hover:before {/style/}

.fa-stack {color: #ffe300}
.fa-circle {background-color:#ffe300}
after changing the section background color to #ffe300. Now I see a 1 px height 12px width white line on 3 corners. How to get rid of it. Thanks

Hi Oeurn,
The icon is styled on the `:before` pseudo element, so to apply a hover style, you need to chain hover and before together, like:

.element:hover:before { color: #0FF;

Hi Danish,

SVG is an image file format, such as JPEG or PNG. IcoMoon (http://icomoon.io/) is a webapp for creating custom icon font libraries. I recommend watching this excellent presentation from Chris Coyier (http://vimeo.com/99828116) which talks about the difference between icon fonts and SVG.

Hi Ankita,
As noted below the code snippet, you can't use `before` or `after` pseudo selectors on the `input` element, so you will need to wrap it in another element, such as a `div` . You can then style the wrapper div using the CSS in this snippet. I have created a CodePen here (http://codepen.io/astrotim/pen/Ddfvt) to demonstrate this in action.

Hi Patricia,
Yes, you can use Font Awesome on any web page, including the Twenty Ten theme. You need to include the font files in your theme files and then reference the fonts in your HTML or CSS. I recommend reading the Get Started Guide on the official Font Awesome website (http://fortawesome.github.io/Font-Awesome/get-started/) to learn more about how it works.

This is likely due to serving the Font Awesome files from a CDN. Firefox and IE now block web fonts served from a CDN due to CORS (https://developer.mozilla.org/en-US/docs/Web/HTTP/Access_control_CORS). David Walsh has a good explanation and solution in his Serving Fonts from a CDN (http://davidwalsh.name/cdn-fonts) article. Alternatively, you can serve the Font Awesome CSS and font files from the same server as the website, and they won't be blocked due to CORS. This article serves the CSS and font files from the same server and thus works normally in Firefox and IE.

Hi Daniele,
On closer inspection, it appears your style.css file includes Font Awesome version 3.0.2. This older version may be the source of your problems. I have made a quick demo of your homepage, removing the reference to version 3.0.2 from your stylesheet and including the stylesheet and font files for Font Awesome version 4.2.0. The demo page loads the fonts OK in Firefox – see here (http://demo.astronautweb.co/fa/).
I hope this helps, Tim.

Since it is a font, you simply use the `font-size` CSS property to control the size.

You can find instructions on how to install the font on the official Font Awesome website here (http://fortawesome.github.io/Font-Awesome/get-started/). I'm not sure what you mean by "when I use the shortcode", this article refers to using CSS content values to reference the font characters directly.

if you need the unicode of the newest FA icons, not listed here yet, you can go ti the FA website, display the icons list, and then use you Firefox element inspector to find it out.

Hi,

Im trying to use your example but the hover functionality is not working. When I move the mouse over the icon, the element doesn't react. Heres my code:

Html code:

{{help_center.name}}

{{#each categories}}
{{name}} ({{url}})
{{/each}}

{{pagination}}

{{#if promoted_articles}}

{{t 'promoted_articles'}}

{{#each promoted_articles}}

{{title}} ({{url}})

{{/each}}

{{/if}}

CSS code:

/* Contacting Us Category */
#category_id_202713678 {
position: relative;

#category_id_202713678:before {
content: "\f003";
font-family: FontAwesome;
font-style: normal;
font-weight: normal;

text-decoration: inherit;

/–adjust as necessary–/

padding-right: 0.5em;

top: 10px;

font-size: 66px;

left: 120px;

right: 200px;

position: absolute;
